Linda Canada Presents: San Diego Between the Wars

Thursday, September 16 at 2:00 PM - Catalina Hall

During World War I, San Diego emerged from its "sleepy little town" status to start the process of becoming a military city. World War II brought people, technology, and industries which forever changed the city. But what was going on here between those conflicts? The United States suffered through Prohibition, followed by the Stock Market crash and the Great Depression, but somehow things were different here in San Diego. You'll learn about the people, politics, and events which affected the city's progress between the wars.

Acrylic Painting with Susan Lofft*

Friday, September 17 at 9:00 AM - The Studio

Susan Lofft is a long time Scripps Ranch resident. She was a Fine Arts major at the University of Connecticut and has studied under several renowned San Diego artists. Landscapes and still life's are her favorite, which she paints in watercolor, oil, and acrylic. She also enjoys plein air painting in different locations in Scripps Ranch. Sign-ups limited to the first 10 people. Supplies will be provided for this first class. *To attend, email Activities@theglensr.com
